Alla Prima...

Italian for “at first attempt”, also known as direct painting or in French “au premier coup” meaning “at first stroke”. No matter how you say it, this method forces the artist to make more thoughtful decisions before setting paint to canvas. Students may work in pastel or oils, and will be limited to small formats, such as 4”x6” and 5”x7”. We will work from objects brought from home; a single blossom, a piece of fruit, a small vase, a simple tool, etc... This class will start with exercises to help the student more accurately block-in objects and see the variety of color before them. Students will finish 8 to 10 paintings.

Cost: $450 (twelve, 3-hour classes)

To Register: Send half of the class fee now ($225), along with your contact information (phone #, email address, street address) to:
